NOTE

THE documents here transcribed were discovered by Sir Aurel Stein at the ancient site beyond the Niya River in his first expedition to Chinese Turkestan in the years 1900-01. They are described and the circumstances of their discovery are recorded in Sir Aurel Stein's Ancient Khotan (Oxford, 1907), to which constant references (denoted by S. AKh.) are given throughout this volume.

Nearly all the inscriptions have been transcribed by all the three editors. The only exceptions are a few tablets bearing fragile clay seals which were not sent to MM. Senart and Boyer, and have not been seen by them. For the transcription of these Prof. Rapson is solely responsible.

In the transcriptions the following conventional signs are used :—

A dot (.) indicates that one element of an akṣara is missing.

In pages 1-83 a missing akṣara is denoted by a short stroke (-) separated from the adjacent letters, and in the remainder of the volume by two dots (..).

The former sign should not be confused with the hyphen (not separated from the adjacent letters) which is occasionally used to make the division of a word.

Longer strokes (---) show that several akṣaras are missing.

Square brackets ([]) indicate that a passage is indistinct or uncertain.

In the notes, the initial of an editor's name (B, R, or S) indicates a reading which is preferred by him to the reading given in the text.
